On July 10th and 11th, 2009 - Chris Williams, Steve Tansley, and Nick Arling will be climbing Mount Hood. Mount Hood is the tallest peak in Oregon at 11,249 feet (3,429 meters). These three have been training for months in preparation for the arduous journey. Mount Hood is a dormant volcano which is covered in snow year round. The trek will be dangerous, but nowhere near as dangerous as not having access to potable water. Please help us give the gift of water to people who don't have this most basic of human needs.

Any contributions you would like to make would be greatly appreciated. Please make checks payable to: WaterAid, and send to Hydro International's office in Hillsboro. Your contributions will go directly to projects in Asia and Africa which will help provide access to clean and safe drinking water for people who desperately need it. Your donation is tax deductible and will make a difference in people's lives.

Please select the sponsorship level that you would like to participate in:
